

Designation: Teaching Fellow (TF)

Department: International Relation

Location: Ashoka University Campus, Sonipat, Haryana

About Ashoka: Ashoka University is India's first Liberal Arts University (non-profit) built on the principles of collective public philanthropy. It offers undergraduate education across humanities, sciences and social sciences and encourages pluridisciplinarity.

About the Department: The Department of International Relations seeks to understand international and global affairs in their manifold complexities from a variety of standpoints. The department's research and pedagogical orientation is self-consciously inter-disciplinary. Faculty members in the department include political scientists, historians, distinguished practitioners, and scholars. Their research ranges from gender and utopianism in international politics, to international histories of India and South Asia, and contemporary globalisation and geopolitics in Asia. The academic and research interests of the department are showcased in the weekly seminars held across semesters, based on research projects of faculty members. It also has deep and extensive links with academic groups and departments across the world.

We are looking for Teaching Fellow to assist Prof Quintijn Kat for the Foundation Course 'Theories and Issues of International Relations'. The course aims to introduce students to the discipline of International Relations by acquainting them with some of its main theoretical perspectives and by looking at several important currentday issues that scholars and practitioners of international politics encounter.
